

Results

The results show different yoga positions and subtle body movements to display the accuracy of the model. For example, even a small movement that suggested that the shoulders were down would display that the individual was feeling low. This model could have a plethora of positive effects(eg : Corporate sectors, psychological studies etc..)

This project won the award and bagged first place for the best project showcase at Ramaiah Institute of Technology, Bangalore, India.

